

Dinky's story by Carole Clifton

Dinky is a cross breed although her breed was put down as Rotty X???. She is a now just over four years of age.

I was fostering four young puppies from Yaps. When they were taken to the vets for their health check and vaccination, it was discovered that Dinky had a major hole in her heart and the vet did not expect her to live beyond six months. After much discussion, I decided to keep her and give her quality of life for whatever time she had. Well, four years on she is still with me and runs like a greyhound having so much energy.

She was a strange little dog to say the least. For the first 18 months, if you looked at her sideways she would pee herself. She was not really affectionate, just wanted to chase a ball. It is only in the last year she will come and give you a cuddle and gets so excited to see you when you come home and accepts strangers as a friend.

I call her my “weird” little girl...
