

Jimmy's story by Liz Stevenson

Jimmy "The Chad" Stevenson was born on my Dad's birthday, (Dad's name was Jim), on a sheep farm just out of Horsham. Mum thought that was great that we named him after Dad, because Dad was a wool classer and loved sheep dogs. He is now six years old.

Jimmy is one of the smartest dogs I have ever known, and certainly one of the loveliest natured dogs you could hope for. We are hopelessly in love with him and he is as much a part of our family as our human children are.

Jimmy loves living at the beach and his idea of heaven is rounding up the fish when he paddles on the edge of the water. In saying that, everything is his favourite thing! He is a very happy dog. He loves being told he is a "good boy" and is very well behaved.

Unfortunately he has been attacked by a few not so well behaved dogs, and is now a bit scared when he meets a new four legged friend; so his nickname is Jimmy the Not So Brave. He is also petrified of the Mr. Whippy truck and fireworks. He turns into a lap dog whenever it is ice-cream time or New Year's Eve!
